

When the virus came to town

When the virus came to town,
It was unheard, unknown,
Nobody thought much of it,
Until toilet paper waved goodbye from the shops,
People began fighting for their lives,
The virus was left undefeated.

Soon after shops were closed,
schools, restaurants too,
It was soon a serious matter,
Lockdown had occurred.

3 weeks past, no hugs or high fives,
Caged in like a wild animal,
No one could survive,
Board game after board game,
Face time after face time,
We were stuck in our own bubble.

Our heroes soon took place,
Acted quick and fast,
Rainbows are seen from me to you,
It will get better,
We are almost there.
